

ELLE[®] DECORATION

FOCUS | BATHROOM NEWS

HOME COMFORTS

Inspired by the traditional hammam, Tade Pays du Levant produces plant and mineral-based skincare products and little luxuries such as massage stones. Stock up on its versatile 'Pain d'Alep' olive and laurel oil soap for use on body, face and hair. It's so mild that you can launder delicate clothing with it, too.

Above, from left 'Hamмам' set (soap, sisal mitt, pumice stone, clay mask), approx £35; 'Rosary Bead' string of laurel massage soaps, approx £17; silver-plated incense burner, approx £15; 'Red Clay' clarifying mask, approx £12; heart-shaped slate massage stone, approx £10; 'Pain d'Alep' soap in box, approx £20, all Tade Pays du Levant (tade.fr)

Stop press! Stone specialist Lapidica has a new showroom in London's Marylebone. Pop in to experience the rare and reclaimed materials on offer and for advice on new surface finishes (020 3012 1000; lapidica.com).

Instant pizzazz If a trip to Morocco is a distant dream, then London showroom Habibi Interiors is the next best thing. As well as sourcing ornate lanterns and cedarwood chests, it sells these tiled splashback panels that come cut to size. A third showroom is due to open in Notting Hill this spring.

Mosaic tile splashbacks, approx £143 each, Habibi Interiors (020 8960 9203; habibi-interiors.com) ▶

FEET TREATS!

Reward tired tootsies with this tactile new teak bath mat, then pad around post-pampering in a pair of stylish, butter-soft slippers.

'Sablón' whitewashed teak bath mat by Lineabeta, £83, Balineum (020 7431 9364; balineum.co.uk). Red suede slippers, £25, Comptoir Libanais (020 7935 1110; lecomptoir.co.uk)

